

CASE STUDY

SALARY SACRIFICE

A firm we look after with 160 employees have their workplace pension scheme with Aviva. We provide support services for the scheme including a written annual Governance report (health check) and periodic review presentations to their staff.

As a result of a review, we were appointed to add salary exchange to the pension scheme. The attraction is a reduction in payable National Insurance contributions for both employer and employee. In this case, the NIC saving for the employer was over £20,000 – a year.

We've seen a prolonged period of low inflation and positive capital growth. That has changed, with spiralling inflation, upward pressure on interest rates and a seemingly inevitable recession on the near horizon – many companies will look to review their operating costs to make savings. Introducing salary exchange to their pension scheme is an efficient way to deliver such cost savings.

MICHAEL BOATENG
CONSULTANT

ALBERT GOODMAN CHARTERED FINANCIAL PLANNERS

